How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

The Fund's Institutional shares returned 7.86% for the year ended March 31, 2026. By comparison, the S&P 500 Index returned 17.80%.

The Fund's performance for the period matched expectations with price appreciation, interest rates, and equity volatility all contributing to returns.

The convertible bond market was influenced by a calendar year 2025 that marked a record for U.S. convertible issuance, with $119 billion of new securities coming to market. Market participants expect new issuance to remain elevated in 2026 and beyond. With credit spreads still near historic tights and pockets of stock-specific volatility remaining robust, issuers continue to achieve meaningful coupon savings by issuing convertibles versus straight debt. In addition, approximately $150 billion of convertible securities are set to mature over the next three years, increasing the likelihood of refinancing-driven issuance.
